

Public Policy in the Post-Soviet Context: Institutions, Ideas and Societies

Saint Petersburg (Russia)
30-31 March 2018

The results of the first stage LUSPRUSS project* were presented at the First Annual International Conference on Public Policy Public Policy in the Post-Soviet Context: Institutions, Ideas and Societies. The Conference took place in North-West Institute of Management RANEPA (Department of Comparative Political Studies) at the end of March (St. Petersburg).

The special section “Political Course on Sustainable Development and Citizens’ Involvement in Urban Development Policy” was held on 31 March and allowed LUSPRUSS project participants to make reports and get feedback from the audience – researchers from other institutions, practitioners and students.

This work was carried out with the aid of a grant from ICLD*

Inessa Tarusina reported on forms of public involvement in the decision-making process on urban development issue in St. Petersburg.

Theoretical aspects of public participation in urban planning in Russia were reflected in the report by Dmitry Goncharov and Alexandra Kozlova.

A brief overview of urban strategic planning system in Russia was presented in report by Elena Tselishcheva.